Week 12 Milestone Worksheet

SECTION A: Introducing Yourself

Part 1: Elevating Your Website Bio

You will now take your website "Bio" to the next level by expanding on your existing "Bio". In order to accomplish this, you need to bring together the following elements from your Week 9-12 Milestones:

a. Week 9

Name the GCGO that most strongly resonates with you.

> My chosen GCGO is Infrastructure, and the identified problem in my community is that a website for essential public services is not loading properly or is poorly designed. It reveals gaps in digital infrastructure that prevent many people, especially those in underserved communities from accessing vital services online.

WHY does this GCGO resonate so strongly with you?

> Among the two aspects I identified, the one I found most intriguing is that the website often doesn't load or crashes because it's poorly built or the servers are slow.

d. The new Bio

Now combine your existing website "Bio" piece from your website with all the different elements you have listed above (not necessarily in the same order) to create an improved "Bio" that introduces visitors to:

- Who you are
- What makes you unique
- Your passions
- How your job will enable/is enabling you to live out your passion

Your new "Bio" piece.

I'm an aspiring (or current) software engineer who loves solving complex problems and building tools that make people's lives easier.

What Makes Me Unique

I combine strong technical fundamentals with a genuine curiosity for how things work. I'm also a great communicator, which helps me explain technical ideas to non-technical people — a skill many engineers overlook.

My Passions

I'm passionate about technology, innovation, and continuous learning. I love creating solutions that improve efficiency and accessibility, and I get excited about mentoring or collaborating with others to grow.

How My Job Enables Me to Live Out My Passion

Software engineering lets me turn ideas into reality — whether that's building an app, designing systems, or contributing to open-source. Each project helps me improve my skills, make a real impact, and share knowledge with others.
